

William Sinunu, MA, LSW, is the co-founder of Globally Hip, a cross-cultural consulting firm specializing in evolving universities and corporations into savvy entities.

A University of Chicago-trained Master Facilitator, Sinunu's insightful material and energetic style lends to captivating presentations garnering kudos from a diverse group of fans including the likes of Academy Award nominee Greg Kinnear, Citigroup Senior Executive Brenda Hopgood and Harvard professor Tal Ben-Shahar, PhD. He is a member of the National Speakers Association and the best-selling author of Life Could Be Sweeter and The Sweet Life and conducts workshops, seminars and conferences for universities and corporations in the U.S. and overseas. Sinunu has worked as a multi-lingual interpreter for the U.S. Department of Immigration and Customs and as a consultant for the U.S. Department of Human Services. Sinunu has presented to a variety of audiences, from corporations like Citigroup, JetBlue Airways and Sun Life Financial to colleges such as Johns Hopkins, New York University and Purdue University.

William Sinunu

Speech Topics

- ▮ Teambuilding
- ▮ Motivation
- ▮ Inspiration
- ▮ Diversity
- ▮ Customer Service
- ▮ Communications

Testimonials

▮ "Mr. Sinunu, you carefully crafted questions providing appropriate scaffolding that enabled us to arrive at newly presented concepts regarding cultural awareness and diversity by building on already acquired knowledge. Your lecture set the stage by providing mental frameworks upon which we could make sense of the new concepts you presented. Finally, Mr. Sinunu, you are a remarkable public speaker." ▮

- Rose Collins, PhD, Professor - Long Island University.

▮ "Bill did a great job presenting the richness of having not only an international customer base, but also a multicultural workforce. My team now knows the world's cultures are the real resource in the global marketplace." ▮

- Jeanne Beacham, President - Delphon Corporation.