

Dominic Pulera is a trend forecaster, an award-winning author, an inspirational communicator, and a multimedia content creator. In his professional activities, Pulera identifies, integrates, and interprets the key trends that shape our lives, viewpoints, and future opportunities. As a trend forecaster, Dominic Pulera develops integrated trend analyses about the key cultural, economic, demographic, geopolitical, and technological issues of the coming years. His firm, Pulera International LLC, offers strategic advisory services to clients throughout the world. Pulera's books emphasize significant developments in American society. His works include: Visible Differences: Why Race Will Matter to Americans in the Twenty-First Century (2002), Sharing the Dream: White Males in Multicultural America (2004), and Green, White, and Red: The Italian-American Success Story (2009). His fourth book, The Good Times Ahead: How Resilient Consumers and the Reset Decade Will Lead to America's Coming Resurgence, will appear in 2014.

Dominic Pulera is a veteran communicator and keynote speaker. He has addressed audiences in all 50 U.S. states and the District of Columbia—and on each of the six populated continents (Asia, Africa, Europe, Oceania, North America, and South America).

Pulera is currently developing projects for film and television, which blend his trend analysis and inspirational perspective. Pulera's first such project is a prospective television program (America's Coming Resurgence)—it draws upon his five years of research and Good News listening tour.

Pulera's media exposure includes various programs and coverage in the United States and abroad. He has been a guest on dozens of radio and ...

Dominic Pulera

Speech Topics

- Race Relations
- Inspiration
- Globalization
- Future
- Diversity

