

Andrew Busch is the former 1st Chief Market Intelligence Officer for the US government and economic futurist at AndrewBusch.com. For the CFTC, he was charged with improving and enhancing the government's understanding of the markets and the economy. His job was to take all the news, information and data on the economy and markets; and filter it into condensed, easily understood research; then communicate it to the government and public.

Andy provided economic and market briefings to White House, US House, US Senate, the SEC, the Federal Reserve Board and the US Treasury staff on a wide range of issues including interest rates, inflation, China's influence on trade, and the impact of technology on the economy.

Prior to joining the CFTC, Mr. Busch was CEO and founder of a boutique financial markets and policy research firm, Bering Productions, Inc (BPI). Before BPI, he was the Global Currency and Public Policy Strategist for Bank of Montreal (BMO) in Chicago. He is author of the book "World Event Trading" covering large crises, like infectious disease outbreaks and war, and their impact on the economy and markets.

Today, he's a consultant and keynote speaker with a wide range of clients including chemicals, financial services, energy, real estate, manufacturing, construction and agriculture.

Testimonials

Andy's powerful and entertaining talk resonated with our audience. And they asked questions until time ran out. Today, it's tough to find an objective voice when it comes to the economy and politics, but he's the one speaker we'd trust to cover these topics anytime.

Mr. Busch was one of the more engaging and well-prepared keynote speakers I've witnessed. He brought not only a wealth of interesting and valuable experience in both the private and government spheres to his presentation, but a passion for bringing that experience to life for us in real and useful ways. I was also impressed with how he handled the Q&A. He is clearly an open-minded person who is willing to listen, and his answers were thoughtful, respectful, and honest. He was graciously willing to personally meet and interact with the conference participants as well, which provided us with additional valuable perspective. I highly recommend Andrew Busch if you want unique, principled, thought-provoking insights into the chaos that exists at the nexus of business, politics, and world events.
