Testimonials

"I wanted to say how overjoyed I am at your book, Getting Things Done, and the changes it's allowed me to make. I've used this information and snippets from your website in my occupation as a United States Air Force squadron commander (currently running an organization of 550). No longer does a day full of meetings make me dread spending long hours in the night to catch up on what I missed, and therefore get home after the kids are in bed. I am very excited and thankful at what I've discovered and what you've given out."

- Security Forces Squadron Commander U.S. Air Force.

"Your wit, personal style and engagement with the Strategic Business Development Department here at Novo Nordisk was received better than any other speaker we have seen! The information that was shared on the GTD system was immediately applicable for everyone and provided some real practical value to the work-life balance effort that is ongoing here. Your contribution in helping us get things done is much appreciated!"
