

Ed Rush is a speaker and author as well as a former fighter pilot in the United States Marine Corps. A decorated F-18 pilot, Ed once served as the one of the country's leading instructors on aerial dog fighting, and recently worked as a key player in the development of the new F-35 Joint Strike Fighter.

After 2 combat tours to Iraq, he left full-time active duty with the Marines to spend more time with his family and work on his business. He now has not 1, but 4 business, works almost completely from home, and has achieved all of this despite possessing a below average intelligence (case in point: Ed failed at his first attempt at Kindergarten).

In addition, Ed is the author of the book Fighter Pilot Performance for Business and the #1 best-selling marketing book How to Turn Clicks Into Clients. Ed is also a co-star in the movie The Opus starring Joe Vitale, Debbie Allen and Chicken Soup for the Soul co-creators Jack Canfield and Mark Victor Hansen.

Testimonials

“The seminar was absolutely fabulous. I learned to focus, to get in the zone, to put a time limit on everything. One big thing I learned was that I need more motivation in life to stop killing time. My new website is going to be ImpementOrDie.com!”

- Keller Williams Realty.

“Ed instantly established his credibility as a dedicated and disciplined professional. He captivated the audience with his approach to achieving maximum performance...The principles Ed teaches with his Maximum Performance Model: Training, Discipline and Habits, are not only good for business and professional career survival, they are also essential to achieving the most out of your personal life...Ed is one of the most inspirational and motivating speakers I have heard during my 18 year career. His practical approach to being prepared and subconsciously competent in your given area can mean the difference between life and death in my profession...Thanks Ed and keep up the good work!”
