

Kathy Ireland began her career as a supermodel and morphed into what the Associated Press and London Times call "a best friend to working mothers" as women all over America embrace her designs and products.

Kathy Ireland is Chief Designer and CEO of Kathy Ireland Worldwide (KIWW). The brand was acknowledged by Women's Wear Daily as one of "America's Most Popular" in its category, with women 18-49. The Kathy Ireland brand is also recognized as #1 in its category for "Product Innovation in America" by the country's leading research firm, Kurt Salmon Associates. An amazing inspiration... She has become a heartland Martha Stewart... Perfect--- Vanity Fair Kathy Ireland was honored by the National Association of Women Business Owners and received the "Entertainment Businesswoman of the Year" Award. She is the only designer in history to have an LPGA-sponsored tournament named in her honor, The Kathy Ireland Championship. KIWW's relationship with the LPGA supports women's athletics and education.

To further reinforce Kathy Ireland's prowess as a designer, her collections are regularly featured in the same prestigious magazines that ask her to grace their covers: Cosmopolitan, Glamour, McCall's, People, Redbook, Shape and Fit Pregnancy. Kathy Ireland's products are regularly featured beside those of Oscar de la Renta, Tommy Hilfiger, Cartier, Liz Claiborne, Charles Jourdan, and Gucci. Kathy Ireland is a favorite guest on The Tonight Show, as well as MSNBC, The Today Show, Oprah, Entertainment Tonight, Access Hollywood and specials on E! and VH1.

It all started with socks. The genesis of Kathy Ireland Worldwide occurred in 1993 when founder and CEO Kathy Ireland brought her unique perspectives to American women...
