

Robert Genetski is one the nation's leading economists. He is a teacher, columnist, and author of 5 books on classical economic principles. His latest book, Rich Nation, Poor Nation: Why Some Nations Prosper While Others Fail, provides over a century of evidence for the success and failure of economic policies in the US and around the world.

Genetski is a popular speaker known for using humor and anecdotes to simplify complex economic issues. For five consecutive years, speaking.com named him one of the top-five speakers in the field of economics and finance.

For the past 25 years his consulting firm, ClassicalPrinciples.com, has provided economic and financial research to individuals and businesses around the world. Genetski writes a regular column for The Epoch Times. His articles have appeared in numerous publications including Fortune Magazine, the Wall Street Journal and Investors' Business Daily. He has appeared on CNN and Fox News and on nationally syndicated radio and TV programs.

Dr. Genetski has taught economics at the University of Chicago's Graduate School of Business, New York University, and other institutions of higher learning. He has held various positions in the financial industry, including Senior VP for a major Midwest bank, money manager, investment advisor and director of investment research and has served as a Director on the Boards of various public and private companies.

Testimonials

"Economics is a very complex and some would say 'bland and boring topic'; Dr. Genetski has the innate ability and skill set to make this subject interesting, understandable and is able to deliver it with enjoyable humor. Additionally, he is remarkably accurate in his predictions, always sharing his scorecard from year to year. I have had Bob speak to my clients for over 20 years, our audience continues to grow always looking forward to his insight."

"On behalf of the entire TAVMA organization, many thanks to you for your service at last week's National RESPA and Bundled Services Symposium. The feedback I've received from those in attendance has been phenomenal. Many people told me that this was the best conference they've ever attended! One example (from an e-mailer): 'I have never attended a more useful symposium than yours this week. I learned what to do and how to do it so I can advise my clients. That is what I needed, and I appreciate it.' I lost count of the number of people who singled you out for praise. Some said they never thought that an economist could be such an effective and entertaining communicator. Others said your classical economic views reaffirmed what they understood to be the truth about how the market works. We had a lot of very good speakers but your presentation was the most talked-about of the conference... you were even quoted by some of the subsequent speakers!"
