

Sidney Moncrief is a retired NBA player who spent the majority of his career with the Milwaukee Bucks. As an NCAA college basketball player from 1975-1979, Moncrief led the University of Arkansas Razorbacks trio known as "The Triplets" to the 1978 Final Four, which ended in a win in the NCAA Consolation Game versus #6 Notre Dame. Nicknamed Sid the Squid, Sir Sid, and El Sid, Moncrief went on to play 11 seasons in the NBA, as his career was cut short by degenerative knees. A noted defensive player, he won the first two NBA Defensive Player of the Year awards in 1983 and 1984.

Coach Sidney Moncrief also led an international team as head consultant in Beijing, China. He has served on the board of directors for a Fortune 500 company and as president of various retail auto dealerships. Sidney is author of five books; Sidney Moncrief: My Journey to the NBA, Your Passport to Reinventing You, Your Passport to Becoming a Valuable Team Player, Your Passport to Back2Basics leadership and Your Passport to Manhood.
