Like you, happiness expert, speaker, and author Brad Montgomery believes:
• Happiness Pays.
• It makes business sense to invest in the "people-side" of business.
• Speakers should be engaging AND have a useful message.
Brad combines all of these ideas — and a ton more — into everything he does on stage. He's a very funny guy with some very relevant ideas about how to improve ourselves and those people around us. And...he's funny. (Yeah, we said this twice.)
He's a ...
• Business Owner
• Author
• Blogger
• Idea guy
But he's also one of the funniest business speakers out there. His keynotes and "Expanded Keynotes" (which is a fancy way to say "Longer keynotes that include some experiential, hands-on learning experiences" ... which is a fancy way to say "Audience Participation On Steroids That Helps People Remember and Learn") use an out-of-the-box blend of humor, wisdom, audience participation, music, and even confetti in order to keep the learning on high.
He believes:
• Motivational speakers should deliver tactics we remember and implement.
• The era of "canned" speakers is over.
• Your organization craves a speaker who can connect, who can have a conversation, and who can be relevant. They crave somebody who is authentic. Somebody who is funny.
Your people will love Brad Montgomery. And they'll love YOU for finding him. When MillerCoors had to knuckle down and manage a software initiative, they called on Brad. After his program, they referred to Brad as "The best 90-minute investment ever in our people."
Organizations who partnered with Brad to help their people become more creative, innovative and productive through greater happiness i...
