

Jennifer Webb inspires and motivates while educating audiences across the nation on the magic of effective communication and the power of changing unproductive beliefs to reach goals. Along with over 25 years experience as a speaker and trainer for corporations, associations, government agencies and educational institutions, Jennifer uses her expertise in NLP (Neuro-Linguistic Programming) along with a variety of other interactive skills to teach others how to overcome their limitations and turn everyday work challenges into opportunities.

Original and insightful, Jennifer delivers her message, (with a bit of real magic included) on the power of changing beliefs to get results, in a way that challenges participants and leaves them wanting to know and discover more about themselves and their potential. Jennifer uses magic as a powerful visual learning tool and an exciting, interactive method to help motivate people to action.

The author of several books on reaching potential, including: Monster Lies: Stop Them Before They Stop You and Zap!Pow!Kazaam! 11 Super Powers to Change Your Career and Life, Jennifer formerly worked as a journalist, researching what it takes to be successful, subsequently interviewing hundreds of people including Orson Welles, Dick Cavett, Muhammad Ali and Ted Kennedy.

Jennifer has worked with hundreds of clients, facilitated seminars and training events, presented keynotes, designed programs and workbooks, worked in television, founded her company Magic Communications over 25 years ago, as well as founded her nonprofit, the Shakespeare Animal Fund and climbed Africa's highest mountain, Mt. Kilimanjaro.
